

Without a wide diversity of sources of information and opinions the citizens of the US remain unenlightened regarding the important issues facing our nation and the world. Differences of opinion are vital to the life of our democracy, so I am vehemently opposed to any further concentration of ownership of the airways in any form. Allowing fewer companies to own more access is a step in the wrong direction. And to say that these big corporations are going broke is a bunch of bull!